

Verena K. Affolter, DVM, PhD

Dr. Affolter earned her Veterinary Degree from the University of Bern, Switzerland in 1982, followed by her doctoral thesis in 1984.

Her pathology training was also performed at University Bern, Switzerland and Cornell University in New York.

She was Board Certified by the European College of Veterinary Pathology in 1998.

She earned her PhD in Comparative Pathology at UC-Davis in 1999.

She currently serves as Professor of Clinical Dermatopathology and Chief of Service in Anatomic Pathology at UC-Davis, with an emphasis on dermatopathology and immunopathology

She is the Past-President of the International Society of Veterinary Dermatopathology.

Her special interests include: histiocytic and lymphocytic proliferative diseases, vasculitis, immune-mediated skin diseases, chronic progressive lymphedema in horses.